What is a project?

A project is a one-time task that is limited in time, content (deliveries) and resources and that has its own project organisation. The number of these kinds of tasks is increasing.

The project's working method puts great demands on the project manager and the project group – demands that you'll find easier to meet with the tools offered by Project Management 1.

Course structure

The course deals with topics that are relevant to all types of projects. These could be in-house, tasks associated with collaboration with customers and other external stakeholders.

The course combines practice and theory, and you'll be working on typical situations in a project process based on a general business case.

Facilitation is a mix of preparatory digital learning modules as well as plenary and group work.

The course is held either with physical attendance or as a virtual course, depending on course date you select. New dates for virtual course will appear soon.

Preparation

Preparation for the course

Preparation is the same for the virtual and physical versions of the course. It consists of:

- Pre-test
- DiSC profile (personal assessment tool)
- 9 digital learning modules

You'll need to complete the pre-test first, before the course starts. This will give you an indication of how much you already know about the topics covered in the course. The instructor can also use the pre-test results to plan their teaching for your specific team and the needs of individual participants.

You must also fill out a DiSC profile and then complete the 9 e-learning modules. Links will be supplied.

You should allow between ½ day and 1 day to carry out the course preparation.

Virtual course

The content of the virtual and physical courses are the same, it's just the format and practical implementation that differ.

The course consists of:

- a virtual kick-off session
- 3 virtual course days
- a final 2-hour session
- follow-up and exam questions, which takes place approximately 1 month after the course.

All sessions are held in Zoom or Teams.

At Mannaz, we have extensive experience with virtual learning, and the course is designed to ensure that you get the maximum benefit. We can guarantee that you'll receive the same benefit as you would on a physical course.

The course is composed of short presentations, interactive group work in virtual breakout rooms, discussions in the 'virtual plenum', several short breaks, and a long lunch break. We then focus on the effect of your learning in the follow-up session.

Internal courses

All our courses can be taught at your location. Internal courses have financial advantages and shared learning creates a sense of community within your organisation.

The course is taught for your company exclusively and so adapted to your wants and needs such as whether the course should be hosted virtually or physically.
